

PARSA's AFGHANISTAN

An Intimate Portrait

of family, generosity, resilience and humor in a harsh but beautiful land

We are proud to announce a Photography Exhibit on PARSA, This small collection of photographs portrays the people, the work and world of PARSA – Physiotherapy and Rehabilitation Support for Afghanistan – a private non-government organization focused on helping women and children in Afghanistan become self-sufficient.

Seattle native, Marnie Gustavson, is PARSA's Executive Director. Marnie, her family and colleagues in Kabul work with Afghans to build: economies for women, healthy families and youth leadership. These programs provide structure to cultivate their skills and positively groom and grow the future of Afghanistan. The outcome inspires hope.

Please join us to see Afghanistan through the lens of PARSA.

Photographs captured by:
Reese Hume, Colin Hume and Michael Jardine
